TEN CENTS A WEEK

DID NOT FIRE A SHOT

Why Thousands of Indians Melted Away Before Forty Men.

A STORY OF PIONEER DAYS.

Captain McCabe knew the Sioux better than they knew themselves, and the Indians knew the Captain's men were dead shots and scalp takers.

In the pioneer days to reach Montana from Cheyenne, in Wyoming, required a roundabout journey that involved a double crossing of the Rocky mountains, with a change of base at Salt Lake City. The United States government brought about a better condition of travel by constructing a trail through the Gallatin valley along the course of the Gumpowder river, reaching around the base of the mountains in a curvilinear form, which avoided the heights of the Rockies. To protect this route from marauding Indians three forts were built—Reno, Phil Kearny and C. F. Smith.

In 1866 the murderous Sioux from the Yellowstone valley pursued a sanguinary course up through the Gallatin valley and into Montana. It was marked by rapine and plunder. They besieged Fort Reno and killed many of its garrison. They envied Fort Phil Kearny and wiped from the face of the earth every human being whose walls it failed to protect. Then they surrounded Fort C. F. Smith, where 200 soldiers found themselves surrounded by more than a thousand death seeking Indians. Escape seemed impossible. A courier got word of this condition of affairs to General Hancock, who was then stationed at St. Paul, and he sent a messenger to the governor of Montana at Bozeman.

The chief executive of the territory of Montana at that time was Green Clay Smith. He had been a member of congress from Kentucky, but President Lincoln made him territorial governor of Montana. He was seated on the porch of his residence in Bozeman when Hancock's message was handed to him. To a visitor he said:

"What in the name of heaven can I do? Fort C. F. Smith is 250 miles away. The country between here and there is filled with Sioux Indians. Our militia force consists of exactly 427 men. Not a man of them could reach Fort C. F. Smith alive. I am absolutely powerless. However, I will send for Colonel Howie."

At that time Colonel Neil Howie was United States marshal for the territory of Montana.

It was to this man that Governor Smith addressed himself, handing him General Hancock's dispatch and saying: "Colonel, we can't do anything for those poor devils in Fort C. F. Smith. Am I not right?"

"No," said Colonel Howie quietly, and with the gentle voice of a woman.

"There is no trouble about that, governor. We can arrange that matter and still leave the Montana frontier protected. I will need some picked men and a good leader for them. I think Captain McCabe is best fitted for this undertaking. I will find him."

McCabe was another gentle voiced man, with blue eyes. He didn't make much noise. He acted. He said to the governor: "Oh, yes; it is easy enough. But I'll need forty of the best men I can select. You can keep the rest of your volunteer force here."

Governor Smith looked at him in amazement. So did the visitor from the fort. They both thought he was either insane or a braggart. Governor Smith said to him: "How in the name of heaven do you expect to raise the siege of Fort C. F. Smith with forty men when you know that it is surrounded by more than 1,000 blood thirsty Indians and that the country between here and there is covered with thousands more of murderous Sioux?"

Said McCabe quietly: "Why, governor, it is easy enough. The Indians know us and know that we know them better than they know themselves. You folks from the east have an idea that what you call Indian atrocities are simply unmeaning exhibitions of brutality; that scalping, for instance, is simply a form of torture. In that you are mistaken. The Indian believes that no man can go to the happy hunting ground, heaven we call it—who has been deprived of his hair. Their motive in scalping a victim is to carry out fiendish hatred to its utmost by preventing him from having a hair hereafter. Therefore to deprive a man of his scalp is to rob him of his hope of a happy hereafter. My men, therefore, I tell you without scalping him, and the Indians know that. The forty men I will select for this expedition are entering in their aim with the rifle. They can shoot sixteen shots in sixteen seconds, and every shot means a dead Indian, and every dead Indian means a scalp, and every scalp means a warrior deprived eternally of a chance of ever reaching the happy hunting ground. My forty men will walk from here to Fort C. F. Smith without firing a shot."

"Incredible!" said Governor Smith. "True," said Captain McCabe.

What was the result? Forty men walked the 250 miles from Bozeman to Fort C. F. Smith. Indians watched them on every side. By days their progress was signaled by circling columns of smoke and by night by fire from mountain tops. But not a shot was fired. When they got within sight of Fort C. F. Smith the thousand whooping Sioux who held the garrison in siege fled, and the forty frontiersmen from Bozeman marched in and escorted the 200 soldiers back to the territorial capital without the loss of a life. Not a shot had been fired. Not a scalp had been lifted.

Alive Four Months in a Grave.

Hari Das, the great Hindoo fakir, who lived in the first half of the nineteenth century, is the only wonder worker of modern times who has ever allowed himself to be buried in the ground for months. In the year 1830 Hari told General Ventura that for a certain fee he would allow a committee to test the claims which he made of being able to die and remain dead for months and then come to life again. When all was arranged Hari hypnotized himself to such a degree that his circulation was wholly stopped. When he was pronounced dead to all intents and purposes he was buried in a garden and a high wall built around the grave. Guards were stationed on the wall so that interference or deception would be impossible. Four months later Hari was exhumed according to agreement, and after a few minutes of vigorous rubbing of his body by friends he opened his eyes, and an hour later he was well and able to walk. The fakir was clean shaven when buried and is said to have come out of the grave in the same shape, a fact which is cited to prove that vitality must have been completely suspended.

Seventeenth Century Superstitions.

That it is a very unfortunate thing for a man to meet early in the morning an ill favored man or woman, a rough footed Hen, a shag-haired Doge, or a black Cat. That it is a sign of death to some in that house, where Crickets have bin many yeeres, if on a sudden they forsake the Chimney Corner. That if a man dream of eggs or fire he shall be of anger. That to dream of the devil is good lucke. That to dream of gold good lucke, but of silver ill. That if a man be born in the daytime he shall be unfortunate. That if a child be born with a Caule on his head he shall be very fortunate. That when the palme of the right hand itcheth it is a shrewd sign he shall receive money. That it is a great signe of lucke if Rats gnaw a mans clothes. That it is naught for any man to give a paire of Knives to his eye theart, for feare it cutt away all love that is between them. That it is ill lucke to have the salt seller fall toward you

Influence of the Home.

Government is made out of the character of the home. The scheme of civilization which makes the home great will make the nation great. The struggle and the purpose of the ages has been to make man independent and responsible in his home life, to make the home a complete civilization in itself, where there is law and order and obedience, education, charity and religion. A man believing in the great purpose of his life, determined to make the best of himself with what he has within his reach and to gather within the reach of his wife and child what shall give them a better chance to grow an inspiration to go forward—and the home, the sweet influence of woman presiding there over the garden of the heart out from which springs all that is beautiful—Schoolmaster.

Enthusiasm.

Nothing else is so contagious as enthusiasm. It is the real allegory of the time of crusades. It moves stone. It charms demons. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity, and truth needs philosophy no victory without it. Bulwer Lytton

THE GREAT WRITERS.

Ideas and Inspiration Taken by One Author From Another.

BUT GENIUS BORROWS NOBLY

The Crude One Is Refined and the Raw Material Fashioned Into a Thing of Beauty—Shakespeare as a Most Brilliant Example.

Our great writers are not great robbers. Literature is not a repository of stolen goods. What seem like stealings by the steel pen are rather the output of the lapidary or a reissue of the mint or, better still, the borrowings from a bank repaid with interest. "It is wonderful," says Charles Reade, "how genius can borrow." "All literature," remarks Oliver Wendell Holmes, "lives by borrowing and lending." and he adds, "A good image is like a diamond, which may be set a hundred times in as many generations and gain new beauties with every change." This is not a question of originality. "The lightning a candle at a neighbor's fire," observes Dean Swift, "does not affect our property in the wick and flame." "Genius borrows nobly." The transference is often a transmutation. For brass, the borrower brings gold, and for iron, silver, and for wood, brass, and for stones, iron. The crude ore is refined and the raw material fashioned into a thing of beauty.

It has been pointed out by Mr. Huth in his "Life of Buckle" that there is a kind of pedigree in literature. Dante avows his indebtedness to Virgil, as the latter himself was under obligations to Homer.

Aristotle owes much to Virgil, and Spenser borrows frequently from Aristotle. Spenser's "Faerie Queene" gave birth to Fletcher's "Purple Island," and this in turn to De foe's "Man," and this in turn to De foe's "Robinson Crusoe" and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress"—all like so many blossoms rising from the one stem.

Shakespeare has been called "the great Warwickshire thief," so inveterate is his borrowing habit. He invaded literature like a Napoleon and brought back the rarest art treasures to enrich and beautify his verse. One is surprised to learn that our dramatist has no original plots, that he has given to poetry no new rhythm or stanza and that "he ran not only in the old road, but in the old ruts." His "As You Like It" is taken from an old romance. The characters of his "Julius Caesar" are old Romans taken from Plutarch. But what borrowing! Dry bones are turned into living men. The commonest materials are taken into the lambent flame of his genius and transmuted into airy beauty.

Milton, too, is a free borrower. It is this fact, indeed, that makes his verse so rich in learned reminiscence and so gorgeous with "barbaric pearl and gold." He owes much to Shakespeare. Some critics think Milton's Eve is borrowed from Shakespeare's Miranda. In the "Taming of the Shrew" occurs the line:

As morning roses newly washed in dew.

While Milton in "L'Allegro" speaks of—

Fresh blown roses washed in dew.

Milton is a very mine to many. Pope is his debtor. Milton's "Smoky Sorceress"—a woman to the waist and fair, but "ending foul in many a scaly fold voluminous and vast"—is made to say, "They call me sin and for a sign portentous hold me; but, familiar grown, I pleased and with attractive graces won the most adverse." Pope sings:

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien, As to be hated needs but to be seen; But seen too oft, familiar with her face, We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

Tennyson must have had in mind Milton's

Hangling in a golden chain This pendent world

when he wrote:

The whole round world is every way Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

Tennyson, indeed, derives much of his exquisite imagery and felicitous phrasing from authors whose names, even many literary men do not know.

Pope borrows his "Vital Spark" idea from an old poem by Thomas Flatman.

Byron gets his "Eagle Feather" image in his "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" from Aeschylus, who flourished in the fifth century before our era.

Coleridge owes his "Ode to Mont

Blanc" to a German poem by Friedrich Brown.

Bishop Ken is indebted for his thought in "The Evening Hymn" to Sir Thomas Browne in his "Colloquy With God."

In his own characteristic manner Rudyard Kipling has met the question of unconscious thievery with a bit of verse which commences:

What a wonder is the human's eye! 'Tis a diamond set in lead and sea. A great thought might require It would not look the same to me.

Let Shakespeare's lines close this paper:

I'll example you with thievery: The sun's a thief, and with his great attraction

Robs the vast sea; the moon's an arrant thief,

And her pale fire she snatches from the sun.

The sea's a thief, whose liquid surge resolves

The moon into salt tears; the earth's a thief,

That feeds and breeds by a composture stolen

From general excrement; each thing's a thief.

—S. B. Dunn in Circle Magazine.

Voting in the Senate.

Jefferson's Manual says: 1. When the yeas and nays are ordered, the names of senators shall be called alphabetically, and each senator shall without delay declare his assent or dissent to the question, unless excused by the senate, and no senator shall be permitted to vote after the division shall have been announced by the presiding officer, but may, for sufficient reasons, with unanimous consent, change or withdraw his vote. No motion to suspend this rule shall be in order, nor shall the presiding officer entertain any request to suspend it by unanimous request (section 41). 2. When a senator declines to vote on call of his name he shall be required to assign his reasons therefor, and, having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the senate. "Shall the senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which shall be decided without debate, and these proceedings shall be held after the roll call and before the result is announced, and any further proceedings in reference thereto shall be after such announcement (sections 17 and 18).

A Fiery Speech.

William O'Brien in his "Recollections" gives this picture of Timothy Healy's first appearance in parliament: "A quarter of an hour after he took his seat as member for Wexford he started up to make his maiden speech—tiny of frame, sardonic of visage, his hands in his breeches pockets, as coolly insolent as a Parisian gambler, as entirely detestable as a small Diogenes, peering over the rims of his pince-nez as from his tub, through billious eyes over his contemptible audience—and horrified the house of commons with the following exordium: 'Mr. Speaker, if the noble Marquis (Hartington) thinks he is going to bully us with his high and mighty Cavendish ways, all I can tell him is he will find himself knocked into a cocked hat in a jiffy, and we will have to put him to the necessity of wiping the blood of all the Cavendishes from his noble nose a good many times before he disposes of us.'"

A Singular Dream.

A singular dream is related in a well known British magazine. A woman suffering from anxiety caused by reduced circumstances dreamed that she went to church. "The people began to go out one by one. I looked around and inquired why they were leaving the church. They said: 'To look for the magic bird in the churchyard. You will always have luck if you find it.' I thought I would try to find it. I went out and swept away the fallen leaves and found a speckled thrush, and as soon as I took it up it dropped £1 in my hand. The next morning I went into our back garden and there among the fallen leaves was the speckled thrush, which had just been killed by a cat. It was yet warm. I said, 'Here is the magic bird, and the money I know will come to pass.' The hope was justified, for I came in the morning and a check from a friend in the evening."

The Strain of the Glass Houses.

"The son of a glassblower is rarely found in the same employment," said a speaker at a child labor conference. "I would rather send my boys straight to hell than send them by way of the glass house," one glassblower is quoted as saying. It appears that the character of the men is greatly affected by the extreme heat and consequent physical strain of the glass houses.

PRESENTED AT COURT

Experience of an American at an English Royal Levee.

A RAPID TRANSIT FUNCTION.

He Was In and Through and Out Before He Really Realized What Had Happened—The Way His Difficulty About a Costume Was Overcome.

A six foot American who had secured a "command" to one of the English royal levees recently found himself in a pretty predicament.

On his notification paper was the hint that levee dress was indispensable. In the guileless innocence of his democratic soul the American took this to mean that frock coat and shiny shoes would be called for.

He was in the act of looking over his best outfit of that nature when a more experienced friend called and caught him in the act. The friend made haste to inform the misguided Yankee that levee dress involved silk stockings, ruffled sleeves, black sword and other items.

Consternation ensued. It continued to ensue when owing to his height and girth no borrowable suit was discovered and no tailor could be found who would make one before the next afternoon. At last a stage levee dress was rented from His Majesty's theater, where it had come duly in "The Last of the Danes."

After the levee was over the American confessed that he hardly knew what had happened. When he reached the palace he was first surrounded by the yeomen of the guard, who started him upstairs with great dispatch. In the course of his progress upstairs the yeomen disappeared, and he found himself in a lane of the palace life guardsmen.

Again the scene changed. Mye Town and Country, and there was a line of royal footmen and sent a large room filled to overflowing with admirals, generals, diplomats, poets, chamberlains, soldiers and sailors of all degrees of commissioned rank and a great host of men attired like himself in levee dress. One by one they were singled out and ushered into the royal presence in the adjoining room, where stood the king surrounded by his suit.

The work of presentation was so rapid that the American found himself out and in another room before he knew what had happened. His overcoat was on his back in the same rapid, mysterious fashion, and the next thing he knew he was outside in the courtyard. But he was actually "presented" and is now forever fit fahig, or eligible for presentation at any court in the world, provided he behaves himself.

All this was preliminary to the presentation of the man's wife and daughter at the drawing room. Men are presented at the king's levee, and the women undergo the same ordeal at the courts or drawing rooms, which are by far the more imposing functions. It is probably no exaggeration to say that every time a drawing room is held £100,000 is spent by the people who go to court.

None but a very old habitue of the court—and then she is never below the rank of a countess—would dream of appearing at court in a costume that she had worn there before. The flims of flowers alone is one of that importance. If it were not for the drawing rooms the large florists could not exist.

Every woman who is presented goes armed with a bouquet, whose value is at least a pound, and some of them are worth ten times that sum. Then there are the bookmakers and the bookers and the milliners to consider, to say nothing of the people who lend carriages.

Suppose there are at a low estimate 500 people on the presentation list. Of these every mother's daughter has herself photographed in her court costume, and London court photographers are notorious for their stiff prices.

St. James' park on the night of a drawing room is filled with Londoners who wander up and down the double line of carriages stalled in the mail, peering into the windows and criticizing the costumes of the matrons and their debutante daughters. It is a legitimate privilege of the populace to consider those waiting for presentation as objects of interest, and there the latter have to sit some of them over an hour subjected to the gaze of a dozen

SUPPORT THE MAN WITH THE LONG STICK

He Will Capture the U. S. Judgeship for Northern District.

THIS IS MR. CHUBB'S OPINION.

This distinguished Republican has just returned from an important conference in Washington, and knows what he is talking about.

Hon. Henry S. Chubb, register of the United States land office, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and one of the most influential Republicans in the State, has returned from Washington, where a few days ago he was called, with Hon. J. M. Counts of Apalachicola, National Committeeman, to confer with "the powers that be" in reference to some important matters, the interest being the United States judgeship for the Northern District of Florida, the position being made vacant by the recent death of Judge Swayne.

Chubb granted an audience to the best representative in his private office at the land office, and seemed to be wearing that broad and contented smile which always characterizes his countenance when something of a satisfactory nature is about to happen for the interests of the Republican organization of Florida.

Supporting him is Mr.

When asked as to who would be appointed to the United States judgeship by the President, Col. Chubb replied:

"I am perfectly confident of Hon. W. B. Chapman's appointment. Inasmuch as he is a native Floridian, a successful lawyer, a man of well-trained mind with guts and balance and a high ethical temperament; having the endorsement of eighty per cent. of the bar of the Northern District, as well as the extensive business interests and the press as a rule, the Governor and leading State officials, there being no apparent reason, with such endorsement, supported by the highest moral of the man, why the appointment should not fall to Mr. Chapman."

Outside Opposition.

The only practical opposition Mr. Chapman has to contend with comes from his own district or people, for there is a few Jacksonville lawyers who generally desire such a good position, and who would be even willing to leave that beautiful city, with its lovely climate and beautiful surroundings, and go to Pensacola to live."

Hot in Washington.

In speaking of the weather in the Federal Capital, Colonel Chubb said that the thermometer stood around 90 degrees. "The weather was extremely warm, and there were no clouds, sunsets, night or day," he said. "It is the average temperature in summer, it will not be long before Florida will make a desirable summer resort for our Northern friends. It is useless for me to add that I am glad to get back home in order to keep cool."

HUNTER OVER FAT GIRL.

Charged With Stealing the Wrong Man.

Cumtland, Md., Aug. 14.—At Elmhurst station on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in West Virginia, Morris P. Vangosen, aged 33, a Baltimore & Ohio operator, was shot and killed in the shadow of his boarding house.

William Jones, aged 24, a Baltimore & Ohio true head, who recently married Georgia Steller, aged 24 years, is in jail charged with the crime.

Jones' wife is noted for her corpulence, being short and weighing over 300 pounds. Jealousy was behind the shooting, although Vangosen was the victim of mistaken identity.

Jones and his wife had been at a dance where Tilden Barnes, a Baltimore and Ohio trackman, had offended Jones by his attentions to his wife. It is supposed that Jones in his jealous rage, mistook Vangosen for Barnes.

Memorial to Dixie Women. Richmond, Va., Aug. 14.—At an enthusiastic meeting of confederate veterans in this city it was unanimously decided to erect a monument to southern women in Richmond. The veterans will raise $100,000 and the city and state will be asked for $30,000 each. The Daughters of the Confederacy will join in the movement.

BLAZING CAR RAN TWO MILES.

Four Women Hurt When Motorman Stopped at Fire House.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 14.—Four women were hurt in a panic while leaving a blazing trolley car after the motorman had run the car 2 miles to a fire house.

The car caught fire from a defective fuse at Ventnor, 2 miles down the beach. The motorman feared that the fire would catch his passengers before they could get out of the car and he put on all speed as the conductor dropped off and telephoned the nearest fire company in this city.

Thousands of promenaders watched the blazing car with its shrieking women passengers as it ran along at nearly a mile a minute clip. When the motorman reached the fire house the firemen were on hand with the chemical apparatus and smothered the fire in a jiffy.

The frightened passengers made a dive for the door as soon as the car was halted and the women were hurt in the crush, but not seriously.

LABOR DAY ORDER BY PRESIDENT

September 2 Made Holiday for Certain Government Employees.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt has issued an executive order making Labor day, Sept. 2, a holiday for government employees and laboring men who are employed by the day. The order is as follows:

"It is hereby ordered that all per diem employees and other day laborers in federal public service wherever employed, whose employ extends through and by the first Monday in September, commonly known as Labor day, and set apart as a national holiday for certain branches of the service by the act of June 28, A. D. 1894, be excused from work on said day and the said day is declared to be a holiday for all purposes for said per diem employees and laborers."

Baron Alderson once released from his duties a juror who stated that he was deaf in one ear. "You may leave the box," said his lordship, "since it is necessary you should hear both sides."

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for easy coughs, hard coughs, desperate coughs. If your doctor fully endorses it for your case, then take it. If not, then don't take it. Never go contrary to his advice. We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our preparations. J. C. City Servants Mustn't Snore. "Excuse me," said the polite employment agent, "but do you snore?" The rosy face of the young girl fresh from the country turned rosier. "Not that I am aware of, sir," she answered. "But what has snoring to do with my suitability for this post of chambermaid?" "You are from the country," the man answered, "for you would understand. You see, here in New York we all live in apartments or flats and snoring is with us an objection, a grave objection, for it hinders sleep. Suppose your master turned in, worn out with a hard day's work and could not get to sleep on account of your snoring. That, if it happened night after night, would settle your hash though you were a very model of a chambermaid." "I see," said the young girl thoughtfully. "I must look into this. I'll let you know later whether I snore or not."

The Unexpected.

A curious story is that of the late Colonel Harry McCalmont of the British army. He was a poor man when he went to the reading of his uncle's will, hoping that perhaps the departed might have remembered him to the extent of an old watch. True enough, the lawyer read out the words, "To my nephew, Harry McCalmont, I leave my watch and chain." The late was satisfied, and, leaning back, he drowsed, lulled by the monotonous tones of the lawyer as he read through the long instrument. At the close he arose to go. "I congratulate you," said the solicitor. "I don't know why you should," said the other. "You are residuary legatee," remarked the lawyer. "You will have $4,000 annually for the first five years from this date, and afterward you will inherit some $7,000,000."

Unlearned, but Wise. "I'm after justice rather than law," said John Dudley, who for twenty-one years, from 1770 to 1791, was one of the most popular judges of New Hampshire. He was unlearned in the law, and his education was so defective that he could not write five consecutive sentences in correct English, yet so acceptably did he discharge his judicial duties that Chief Justice Parsons of Massachusetts, one of the most learned of lawyers, said of him, "We may smile at his law and ridicule his language, yet Dudley, take him all in all, was the greatest and best judge I ever knew in New Hampshire."

I have used it constantly. I believe it to be the best medicine of its kind, and I wish all sufferers from these troubles to know the good Herbine has done me." Sold by W. M. Johnson.

The Holly.

The holly in Germany is called Christdorn, or Christ's thorn, the legend being that it was of this plant that the crown of thorns was made. In France the honor is assigned to the hawthorn, which is there called the noble thorn. In Spain the legend assigns the honor to the bramble. An old Scotch legend makes the crown to consist of thistle blades, while in the folklore of England the climbing rose is said to have been the plant selected by the persecutors.

Children in Pain

Never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all babies who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. Sold by W. M. Johnson.

Women's Pains

"I was a total wreck," writes Mrs. Beulah Rowley, of Champoege, Oregon, "from pains I had suffered, for 4 years, every month. Sometimes I would be unconscious for 12 hours at a stretch. I did not know that anything could stop the pain entirely, but Wine of Cardui did. I advise all women suffering with painful periods to use Cardui and be relieved."

It does this by regulating the functions and toning up all the internal female organs to health. It is a pure, specific, reliable, female remedy, with a record of 70 years of success. It has benefited a million others. Why not you? Try it.

GAINESVILLE HAD A WALKOVER.

Lawley Stars Couldn't Find Sheats and Made Many Costly Errors.

Excellent twirling on the part of Sheats, of the Gainesville team, and the costly errors made by the players of the Bradford County Stars, caused the downfall of the team yesterday afternoon by a score on 9 and 0.

The game was well patronized by fans and fannabellies and Dr. Tison, the manager, was delighted. The boys from Lawley played clean ball, that was absolutely devoid of rowdyism, but they could not put up the article delivered by the Oak Halls, and hence their defeat.

Sheats pitched an excellent game, having complete control of the sphere, and the visitors were at his mercy. In addition to this he secured a neat double and a single.

The work of Cragin at first was real league ball and the base running of Graham was good. Sheats struck out nine men and Perry has the same number to his credit. Sheats was found for four hits while the home team located Perry ten times.

W. R. McKinstry umpired the game and was called on for several close decisions.

TO DRILL TWICE A WEEK.

The Gainesville Guards Getting Ready for the Encampment.

From this date until the time to go into the annual encampment Company H, Second Infantry, the Gainesville Guards, will hold regular drills twice each week, instead of once a week as heretofore. The drill nights will be Tuesday and Friday, and Lieutenant Shields Warren, who is in command of the company, owing to the absence of Captain Blanding, is particularly desirous of a large attendance at each drill. Lieutenant Warren is anxious to carry a crack company to camp, and, inasmuch as he is one of the most proficient military men and tacticians in the State Troops, he will no doubt be successful.

The troops will not mobilize this year as usual, but will be assigned to duty at coast defenses, to serve with the regular army troops. These coast defenses are located at Key West, Tampa and Pensacola.

The encampment will be held in October.

Will Move to St. Petersburg.

While nothing authentic could be learned, it is rumored that O. D. Huff, the trucker of Evinston, will shortly go to St. Petersburg, which place he will make his future home.

Mr. Huff is not only one of the most successful truckers, but one of the most desirable citizens in his section, and his friends will regret very much to see him leave.

ROBERT A. TURNER.

Deserved Tribute to a Good and Noble Man.

Hon. James E. Alexander, of the Land, pays the following deserved tribute to the late Robert A. Turner, Volusia County Record.

Editor Record: Back space in your paper that I may give a brief sketch of the life and character of my late friend Robert A. Turner, who passed away at his home at Alachua, Florida, July 15, 1907.

Bob Turner, as his many friends loved to call him, was the son of Mr. J. A. and Mrs. Annie M. Turner, and was born in Edgefield S. C., August 6, 1858. His parents moved to Florida from South Carolina when the subject of this sketch was a child, and settled at Providence, Bradford county. Upon reaching manhood he came to Volusia county and for a number of years resided at Enterprise, then the county seat of Volusia. Enterprise was at that time the prettiest and most thriving little town in Florida, being the head of navigation of the St. Johns river and the distributing point for all mail south on the East Coast. All residents of the East Coast section, including all tourists, had to pass through Enterprise. It was the Jacksonville of South Florida. This was in the early 80's. Politics was pretty hot in those days and Enterprise was controlled by a band of white Republicans from Henry county, Ind. The bitterest that ever struck Florida. The negroes being largely in the majority, were easily influenced and controlled by this Henry county contingent from Indiana.

Among the young Democrats living there at that time, in 1884, were Bob and Bill Dickens, Gus Willard, Bill and Jim Fitts, Bob Turner and Jim Alexander. They got together and ran a young men's ticket for city offices, composed of the following: Jim Alexander for mayor, Bill Dickens and Gus Willard for aldermen, Bill Fitts for clerk and treasurer, and Bob Turner for marshal and collector, and, after a hot contest, all were elected. They were happy, jolly days of the long ago. Bob Turner was also deputy sheriff and was virtually sheriff, as Sheriff Cone lived 40 miles from the court house and was in feeble health. Times were different then from now. I never knew Bob Turner to hand cuff a prisoner. He carried a man charged with murder to Manatee county, when Pine Level was the county seat. He and the prisoner occupied different rooms while en route to Manatee county. He controlled men by kindness. He was as true a friend and as brave a man as ever lived, and was the soul of honor, and his word was his bond. For a number of years he was associated with D. D. Rogers in surveying and civil engineering, and while thus engaged contracted rheumatism, which finally caused his death.

After spending about 15 years in Volusia county he returned to East Florida and settled at Alachua, Alachua county, in the cotton belt, where he owned and operated several cotton gins.

He married Miss Annie Weeks, the daughter of Jonathan and Mary Weeks. The Weeks' are among the most prominent and influential families in Florida. Their names appear in the constitutional convention of Florida and among her legislators. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss, three daughters and a son, who have the deep sympathy of hundreds of his friends, who join in their sorrow and affliction. His only brother, Mr. J. R. Turner, is the present sheriff of Volusia county and has filled that responsible position for many years. He was buried in the old Newnansville cemetery, a beautiful and historic spot in Florida. In the campaign of 1904 I visited this place, where so many of Florida's noblest sons and fairest daughters are resting under the shade of the trees. Little did I then think that the true friend of my young manhood days was soon to join those who had crossed over to the great beyond. During President Cleveland's first administration, through the influence of Senator Call, a federal office was tendered Bob Turner, but his health would not permit him to remain long in the public service. He has left a name that will always be honored and respected by all who know him. Peace to his ashes.

Merchant M. Baldwin has gone to Baltimore and other places to purchase his fall stock of goods.

Rev. S. W. Lawler, presiding elder of the East Coast district, is in town calling on friends.

George Rose started North with his mother, Mrs. S. L. Rose-Wood, yesterday. She has been confined to her bed for nearly three months in an almost helpless condition, and had to be carried on a stretcher. Dr. F. McRae went with them.

Capt. F. A. Weeks has sold part interest in the steamer Alert to Mr. Renault of Waldo, and they will move the steamer on the Suwannee river. The Alert has been running on the lake here between Melrose and Waldo for more than twenty years, but recently the hyacinths have been so bad and the lake too low for navigation with any degree of certainty.

ARNOW STOPPED VEHICLES.

Ordered that Passageway at Depot Must Be Kept Clear.

The public who have occasion to visit the Atlantic Coast Line depot at train times are under obligations to Marshal Arnow for his promptness in clearing the street between the depot and the train, of hacks, drays and other vehicles, so promptly after attention had been called to the matter in The Sun. The situation for a while was so bad that it was actually dangerous for a person to stand in the passageway or attempt to cross it, so numerous were these vehicles and so reckless had the drivers become in their endeavor to secure business.

Marshal Arnow has put all hackmen and draymen on notice that when they block this way in future they will be arrested promptly.

Sank in the Lake.

Newark, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Walter Anderson, 24 years old, son of Dr. F. T. Anderson, a prominent Columbus physician, died of heart failure when his boat upset at Buckeye lake and his body, which sank to the bottom in eight feet of water, was recovered. Anderson was rowing a boat load of lumber, which upset, throwing him out. The coroner's inquest showed that death was due to heart failure and not drowning.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Demerol Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water? If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Demerol and to prevent it from coming back by using the germicidal cream with Contrarides, Vasoline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called "herpicides."

Newer's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp disinfectant manufactured. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

HOW BONNER WON SUCCESS

The career of Robert Bonner, the veteran publisher, furnishes a signal illustration of the value of persistent and sagacious advertising. When he began the publication of the paper whose phenomenal success brought him fame and fortune, he did not wait for the people to find out, slowly and gradually, the interesting features of his journal.

He forced his enterprise upon public attention by a systematic lavishment of expenditure for advertising which at that time was without precedent or parallel. Whole pages of daily newspapers were secured at high prices to blazon forth the merits of his undertaking.

From one end of the country to the other the names of Bonner and his Ledger were made familiar to the people by constant repetition.

Conservative publishers, joggling along in the ruts of old routine, prophesied bankruptcy and ruin for this unconventional innovator, but Bonner kept on spending a large share of his receipts in buying publicity, and those receipts increased with startling rapidity.

Every dollar disbursed in this way brought in more dollars until croakers were confounded and pessimists in this particular branch of business silenced by his tremendous success.

The lesson is one that is as well worth reading today as it was forty years ago. —Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE DREAD OF RABIES.

Out of All Proportion to the Frequency of the Disease.

Few accidents are more terrifying to the sufferer than to be bitten by a dog supposed to be mad, and there are few conditions in which prompt and intelligent action on the part of the bystanders is more desirable.

Although nearly all warm blooded animals are susceptible to rabies, it is most commonly seen in dogs. There are two forms, the "furious" and the "dumb." In the furious type after a period of melancholy or depression the animal becomes restless and irritable, with a tendency to run away and snap at everything in sight, finally becoming subdued and sullen and dying of paralysis and exhaustion. In dumb rabies the stage of irritability is absent. The dog prowls about in a listless way, with his head down and lower jaw dropped. At the same time there is difficulty in swallowing.

It is often impossible to tell from a dog's actions whether it is rabid or not. But if instead of killing the animal as quickly as possible, as is often unwisely done, the owner captures it and keeps it for a few days under lock and key the question answers itself. A rabid dog always dies in from four to eight days, so that if the animal recovers the bitten persons may be sure that they are not going to develop hydrophobia.

In any suspicious case the wound should immediately be squeezed under hot water and if deep be incised freely, so that cauterization with either a hot iron or with strong nitric acid (not with lunar caustic) may be thoroughly done. At the same time the dog should be kept under observation, or if already killed the head and neck should be packed in ice and preserved for medical examination.

Even if it seems certain that the animal was rabid the patient should not despair, for it is estimated that only 15 per cent of those bitten by rabid animals actually develop the disease, and if the Pasteur preventive inoculations are promptly begun recovery is almost certain.

The popular dread of rabies is out of all proportion to the relative frequency of the disease, and the length to which it may go is shown by the instances in which people have developed and even died of false hydrophobia, a nervous condition due to fright and simulating to some extent the real malady. — Youth's Companion.

BURNING THE YULE LOG.

A Survival From the Adoration Once Offered to the Sun.

In some parts of Germany the Yule log is placed on the hearth on Christmas eve and if possible kept burning for two or three days. Then a piece of it is laid aside for the purpose of lighting the next year's log and of guarding the household from harm. Pieces of fir wood charred but not quite burned out in the Christmas fire are also placed under the family bed in some German villages to avert the dreaded lightning stroke, which appears in this relation to be the type of fire in its evil aspect, in contradistinction from the solar orb, the representative of beneficent light and warmth. The custom of burning a Yule log for three days and nights in each homestead is almost certainly a survival from the adoration once offered to the sun at the winter solstice.

Three centuries after the Christian era sun worship was still maintained in Brittany, and in Normandy not more than 100 years ago the household fire was extinguished on Dec. 24 and the Christmas log was ignited by the aid of a flame procured from the lamp burning in the neighboring church. This fact affords a curious instance of the probable transference of respect and reverence from the sacred fire of a purely heathen creed to the ecclesiastical lights of Catholicism. When the pagan rites for procuring unquelled fire were forbidden or fell into desuetude the ideas to which they owed their origin and development, instead of perishing, continued to exist more or less perfectly by attaching themselves to usages and ceremonies having no direct association with them.

Colds and Colognes.

Grip and colds, according to a French physician, will yield if met at the very beginning with a copious supply of the best cologne. Pour the cologne into a handkerchief rolled to a funnel and inhale the fumes steadily every two or three minutes. After a burning sensation has been experienced one may wait ten or fifteen minutes before taking another sniff. If the bad symptoms have not subsided after twelve hours of this remedy it shows that the malady was too far under way.

Closer to Nature.

We get closer to nature when we are creating, whether in art, in literature, in invention or in working at new and progressive ideas. We can feel our mind reach out into infinity and grasp and bring back something fresh, new, something never seen on this earth before.—Success Magazine.
